Notice of Decision City Council City of Albuquerque March 20, 2026

AC-25-05 - Maria Gonzales (Agent) Appeals The Zoning Hearing Examiner's Decision To Deny A Variance Of 30 Inches To Allow A 66-Inch Projecting Wall Sign At The Property Located At 3715 Silver Ave SE, Zoned MX-M, VA-2025-00170

Decision

On February 18, 2026, by a vote of 5 FOR and 4 AGAINST, the City Council voted to reject the LUHO recommendation and findings and hold a full hearing on this appeal.

For: Bassan, Champine, Grout, Lewis, Peña

Against: Baca, Fiebelkorn, Rogers, Telles

On March 2, 2026, by a vote of 5 FOR and 4 AGAINST, the City Council voted to grant the appeal, reverse the ZHE's decision to deny a proposed variance of 30 inches to allow a 66-inch projecting wall sign at the property located at 3715 Silver Ave SE, 87108 (zoned MX-M).

For: Bassan, Champine, Grout, Lewis, Peña

Against: Baca, Fiebelkorn, Rogers, Telles

On March 16, 2026, by a vote of 9 FOR and 0 AGAINST, the City Council voted to adopt the following findings in support of its decision to grant the appeal:

FINDINGS

1. This is an appeal of the Zoning Hearing Examiner's (the "ZHE's") denial of a proposed variance of 30 inches to allow a 66-inch projecting wall sign at the property located at 3715 Silver Ave SE, 87108 (zoned MX-M).
2. The Applicants, Maria Gonzalez, of Zeon Signs, and Pastor Dan Miller, of City on a Hill Church, timely appealed the decision of the ZHE to Land Use Hearing Officer ("LUHO").

The Applicants have standing to appeal the variance decision because the appellants are the applicants of the variance request.

3. A quasi-judicial appeal hearing was held before the LUHO on January 15, 2026, in which the Appellants, the general public, and City Staff were all allowed to present evidence and cross-examine testimony.
4. Following the hearing, the on January 27, 2026, the LUHO issued a Proposed Decision to the City Council in which the LUHO recommended that the appeal be denied and the ZHE's decision to deny the proposed variance should be upheld.
5. At the City Council Meeting on February 18, 2026, the City Council voted 5-4 to reject the LUHO recommendation and findings and hold a full hearing on this matter.
6. At the City Council Meeting on March 2, 2026, the City Council held a quasi-judicial appeal hearing on this matter, after which, it voted 5-4 to grant the appeal and adopt findings of its own.
7. On appeal, the City Council considers whether the ZHE made one or more of the following errors:
 - a. The ZHE acted fraudulently, arbitrarily, or capriciously;
 - b. The ZHE decision being appealed is not supported by substantial evidence; and/or
 - c. The ZHE erred in applying the requirements of the IDO.

ROA 1994, § 14-16-6-4(U)(4).

8. Pursuant to the IDO, the proposed variance may be approved only if the applicant provides sound justification based on substantial evidence that the proposed variance meets all of the following criteria:
 1. There are special circumstances applicable to a single lot that are not self-imposed and that do not apply generally to other property in the same zone district and vicinity, including but not limited to size, shape, topography, location, surroundings, physical characteristics, natural forces, or by government actions for which no compensation was paid. Such special circumstances of the lot either create an extraordinary hardship in the form of a substantial and unjustified limitation on the reasonable use or economic return on the property, or practical difficulties result from strict compliance with the minimum standards.
 2. The Variance will not be materially contrary to the public safety, health, or welfare.
 3. The Variance does not cause significant material adverse impacts on surrounding properties or infrastructure improvements in the vicinity.
 4. The Variance will not materially undermine the intent and purpose of this IDO, the applicable zone district, or any applicable Overlay Zone.
 5. The Variance approved is the minimum necessary to avoid extraordinary hardship or practical difficulties.

ROA 1994, §14-16-6-6(N)(3).

9. The Council finds that the ZHE's denial of the proposed variance is not supported by substantial evidence, and the ZHE erred in applying the requirements of the IDO to this application for a variance.
10. The ZHE predicated its decision on two of the main five factors under IDO:
 - a. whether special circumstances were applicable; and
 - b. whether the variance would not be materially contrary to public safety, health, or welfare.
11. The ZHE did not consider the substantial evidence of special circumstances testified to by the Applicants. Specifically, the ZHE did not consider the special circumstances regarding the proposed variance as testified to by the Applicants:
 - a. the non-standard corner with limited sightline exposure; and
 - b. the inability to place the sign on a flush-wall that is visible from the approach direction used by most pedestrians and vehicles due to the building's architecture.[R.008-009]
12. Additionally, the ZHE did not consider the substantial evidence that the Variance will not be contrary to public safety, health, and welfare. Applicants provided mitigation options to the design of the sign, removing flashing and alternating lights, maintaining standard lumen levels consistent with typical channel-letter signage, and meeting limits on the increase in light spillover or glare beyond common commercial lighting present in MX-M districts. [R. 009]
13. Further, the ZHE did not consider the remaining criteria for a proposed variance; whether the proposed variance would cause significant material adverse impacts on surrounding properties or infrastructure improvements, whether the proposed variance will not materially undermine the intent and purpose of the IDO, the applicable zone district or any applicable Overlay Zone, and whether the Variance approved is the minimum necessary to avoid extraordinary hardship or practical difficulties. [R. 007]. The City Council finds that to the extent applicable to this proposed variance, these three criteria were also satisfied by substantial evidence provided by the Applicants.
14. CONDITIONS OF APPROVAL:
 - a. No sign or any part of the sign shall move, rotate, or change illumination to produce any apparent motion of the visual image, including but not limited to illusion of moving objects, moving patterns or bands of light, alternating lights, expanding or contracting shapes, or any similar effect of animation.
 - b. The sign shall not be illuminated between the hours of 10:00 PM and 7:00 AM.
15. Pursuant to ROA 1994, section 14-16-6-4(U)(3)(e)(6) and Council Rules of Procedure Art. III, section 8(B)(4)(a), these findings were made based solely on the evidence in the record at the close of the LUHO's hearing and the oral arguments of the parties; the City Council did not accept new evidence at the hearing before City Council.

16. For the foregoing reasons, the appeal is granted, the decision of the ZHE in this matter is reversed, and the proposed variance is approved, subject to the conditions above.

For: Baca, Bassan, Champine, Fiebelkorn, Grout, Lewis, Peña, Rogers, Telles

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED THAT THIS APPEAL IS GRANTED, THE ZHE'S DECISION TO DENY THE PROPOSED VARIANCE IS REVERSED, AND THE VARIANCE IS APPROVED.

CITY OF ALBUQUERQUE
LAND USE APPEAL UNDER THE IDO
BEFORE AN INDEPENDENT
LAND USE HEARING OFFICER

APPEAL NO. AC-25-05
VA-2025-00133 (ZHE – Variance),
MZP-2025-00021 (Appeal)

City on a Hill Church, Paster Dan Miller, Maria Gonzales, Appellants.

PROPOSED DECISION

INTRODUCTION
RELEVANT BACKGROUND
STANDARD OF REVIEW
DISCUSSION
PROPOSED FINDINGS

I. INTRODUCTION

On November 20, 2025, the City on a Hill Church by and through their agents (Appellants) filed an appeal with the City Planning Department. The Appellants are appealing a final decision of the Zoning Hearing Examiner (ZHE) who denied their variance application for a wall sign that projects perpendicular out from the East side wall facade of a church building. The Appellants sought the variance because the sign is proposed to extend out from the building wall facade more than what is allowed in the Integrated Development Ordinance (IDO). The material facts are undisputed.

37 After reviewing the record in full, holding a quasi-judicial hearing on the appeal, a
38 hearing in which the Appellants and others were afforded an opportunity to testify, cross
39 examine testimony, and supplement the record, I respectfully recommend that the City
40 Council deny the appeal and uphold the ZHE's decision. As discussed in detail below, the 41 ZHE's decision is well supported with substantial evidence in the record. Conversely, the 42 Appellants have not met their minimal burdens of proof under the IDO to support the 43 variance. What follows is a brief discussion of the relevant factual and procedural history, a 44 discussion of the standard of appellant review, and a detailed discussion of the facts and the 45 IDO criteria applicable to the variance application.

46

47 II. RELEVANT BACKGROUND

48

49 The City on a Hill Church appellants (hereinafter "CHC" or "Appellants") are 50 represented by Maria Gonzales, an agent with Zeon Signs, and Pastor Dan Miller, a
51 representative of the CHC [R. 029, 031]. The CHC is located at 3715 Silver Avenue SE, 52 Albuquerque, 87108 [R. 029]. The church building is zoned MX-M (mixed use-medium 53 intensity zone district) [R. 038]. See also IDO, § 2-4(C)(1).

54 Under the IDO Appellants have many options for signage. This will be discussed
55 below. Apparently, the sign that the Appellants sought the variance for was previously located 56 at a different church site in Albuquerque so Appellants now desire to reuse or "refurbish" it for 57 the CHC site at 3715 Silver Ave. [R. 077]. The sign's dimensions are well documented in the 58 record; the overall size of the sign spans 72 inches tall by 55.5 inches wide, and 8 inches deep
59 (thick) [R. 024]. The proposed sign encompasses luminous tubing and is therefore also defined

60 as an illuminated sign under the IDO [R. 021]. See IDO, § 7-1, Definitions.

61 Appellants wish to mount the sign perpendicular to the Church's East wall facade so
62 that the content of its two faces can be seen from the North and South of the site [R. 018-024].

63 In order to accomplish this, the sign must be mounted on the wall in a manner that is defined
64 in the IDO as a "projection sign;" a subclass of a "wall sign." See IDO, § Table 5-12-3. For

65 visual clarity, the IDO includes with the definition of a projection sign, a depiction of one. See

66 Exhibit 1 below:

67
68
69
70
71
72
73
74 Exhibit 1. IDO, §7-1, Definition, Projection sign.

75
76 Under the IDO, in any zone district, projection signs can only project (extend) out from 77 a wall facade it is affixed to a total of 30 inches. IDO, § Table 5-12-3. The Appellants' sign
78 plans clearly show that the sign is intended to project out from the church wall a total of 57.5
79 inches [R. 024].¹

80 In the appeal hearing, City Planning Department Staff testified that before the CHC
81 applied for the variance, their sign plan was submitted and reviewed by Staff with the City
82 Zoning Enforcement Department and that the Appellants were advised that they could not

1. Although the record shows that the sign is designed to project out from the wall a total of 57.5 inches, the precise variance request is to allow for the sign to project out 66 inches from the wall [R. 019].

83 mount the proposed sign in the manner that was proposed as a projection sign without violating 84 the IDO or without an approved variance [R. 015 and LUHO Hearing].

85 Appellants submitted their variance application to the City Planning Department Staff
86 during the Summer of 2025 [R. 017]. A preapplication conference between City Planning Staff
87 and the Appellants was held in August 2025 [R. 074].

88 The ZHE's quasi-judicial public hearing on the sign was scheduled for September 16, 89 2025 [R. 019]. The hearing was deferred because there was an issue regarding notification to 90 property owners within 100 feet of the application site [R. 046]. After the notification error
91 was corrected, the ZHE held a quasi-judicial hearing via Zoom on October 21, 2025 [R. 054].
92 After the hearing, in a written decision, dated November 5, 2025, the ZHE concluded that the 93 Applicants-failed to meet their evidentiary burden of proof for the variance under IDO, § 6-6-
94 6(O)(3)(a) and denied the application [R. 006-008].

95 Appellants filed this timely appeal on November 20, 2025 [R. 009]. The Appellants
96 have standing to appeal under IDO, § 6-4(U)(2)(a)1; they are the applicants of the variance at 97 issue in this appeal. [R. 012]. In their appeal, the Appellants did not claim that the ZHE erred,
98 but instead they "acknowledged the ZHE findings," and presumably to mitigate the visual
99 secondary effects of the illuminated sign, they now propose eliminating the flashing
100 illumination feature of the sign [R. 009].

101

102 III. STANDARD OF REVIEW

103 A review of an appeal under the IDO is a whole record review to determine whether 104 the ZHE's decision approving the variance was fraudulent, arbitrary, or capricious under the

105 IDO; or whether the decision is not supported by substantial evidence; or if in approving the 106 application, the ZHE erred in the facts, or in applying the requirements of the IDO regulations.
107 See IDO, § 6-4(U)(3)(d). The Land Use Hearing Officer (LUHO) has been delegated the 108 authority by the City Council to hold a quasi-judicial appeal hearing, make findings, and to 109 propose a disposition of an appeal, including whether the decision should be affirmed, 110 reversed, or otherwise modified to bring the decision into compliance with the standards and 111 criteria of the IDO. If a remand is necessary to clarify or to supplement the record or if a 112 remand will expeditiously dispose of the matter, the City Council has delegated authority to 113 the LUHO to remand appeals independently and directly to the original decision maker for 114 reconsideration or for further review. IDO, § 14-16-6-4(U)(3)(d).

115

116 IV. DISCUSSION

117 There is unambiguous and undisputed factual evidence in the record that supports the 118 ZHE's decision. Moreover, there is no basis to conclude that the ZHE erred in applying the 119 IDO to the facts. Although the Appellants are proposing to eliminate the flashing illumination
120 feature of the sign, this slight change does not impact the basis for the ZHE's denial. Therefore, 121 under these circumstances a remand would not be appropriate.

122 A. The Variance Test

123 Notably, under IDO, § 6-4(E)(3), when submitting an application to Planning Staff and 124 or to any reviewing body under the IDO, an "applicant bears the burden of providing a sound
125 justification for the requested decision, based on substantial evidence." Next, because this 126 application concerns a variance, it is prudent to commence this discussion with a review of the

127 IDO's variance criteria. Under the IDO, a variance is an exception to the strict dimensional 128 standards encompassed in the IDO. See IDO, Definitions, § 7-1. Depending on the type of 129 variance request, variances are generally reviewed by the ZHE.² The variance test or criteria
130 for deciding the Appellants' sign variance can be found in IDO, § 6-6(O)(3). It states in full:

131 Review and Decision Criteria

132 6-6(O)(3)(a) General

133 An application for a Variance – ZHE shall be approved if it meets all of the 134 following criteria.

- 135
136 1. There are special circumstances applicable to a single lot that are not self-
137 imposed and that do not apply generally to other property in the same zone
138 district and vicinity, including but not limited to size, shape, topography, 139 location, surroundings, physical characteristics, natural forces, or by 140 government actions for which no compensation was paid. Such special
141 circumstances of the lot either create an extraordinary hardship in the form 142 of a substantial and unjustified limitation on the reasonable use or 143 economic return on the property, or practical difficulties result from strict 144 compliance with the minimum standards.
- 145
146 2. The Variance will not be materially contrary to the public safety, health, 147 or welfare.
- 148
149 3. The Variance does not cause significant material adverse impacts on 150 surrounding properties or infrastructure improvements in the vicinity.
- 151
152 4. The Variance will not materially undermine the intent and purpose of this 153 IDO, the applicable zone district, or any applicable Overlay Zone.
- 154
155 5. The Variance approved is the minimum necessary to avoid extraordinary 156 hardship or practical difficulties.

157
158 (Emphasis added.)

159 All five prongs of the variance test must therefore be met by an applicant before a
160 variance can be approved. The first prong of the variance analysis has two subparts and first

2. Variances proposed through subdivisions and with certain building site plans are decided by the Environmental Planning Commission (EPC). Whether decided by the ZHE or by the EPC, the variance criteria for judging whether a variance should be approved is essentially the same test.

161 requires that applicants demonstrate that “there are special circumstances applicable to the 162 property” on which the variance is sought. However, only certain classes of “special
163 circumstances,” are eligible. The special circumstance(s) claimed must be directly attributable 164 to the subject property at which the variance is proposed, and the special circumstance(s) must 165 not have been “self-imposed” by an applicant. The exclusion of “self-imposed” circumstances
166 is further highlighted in the second clause of the first sentence of § 6-6(O)(3)(a)1 which lists
167 some examples of special circumstances. Although the list of what qualifies as a special
168 circumstance in the first prong is not exhaustive for qualifying circumstances, it does include 169 some clear examples, including “physical characteristics ... or government action for which 170 no compensation was paid.” See IDO, § 6-6(O)(3)(a)1.

171 In addition, the second subpart of the first prong requires that the applicants 172 demonstrate that the special circumstance must also create an “extraordinary hardship in the 173 form of a substantial and unjustified limitation on the reasonable use or economic return on
174 the property, or practical difficulties result from strict compliance with the minimum
175 standards.” See IDO, § 6-6(O)(3)(a)1. This requirement further limits eligibility for a variance.
176 The implication is that approving the proposed variance must effectively diminish the adverse 177 effects of the special circumstance in some meaningful manner.

178 This second subpart of the first prong is often overlooked by applicants. It essentially 179 challenges an applicant to show just how necessary the variance is because the applicant must 180 show that without the variance considerable hardship or practical difficulty will ensue.

181 The second and fourth prongs essentially implicate broad policy concerns about 182 whether a proposed variance will adversely impact the public and the IDO. Like the “hardship

183 or "practical difficulties" subparts of the first prong, these prongs are rarely considered by 184 applicants in their variance applications; but they are exceedingly significant to the overall
185 variance analysis. Generally, an applicant must prove that the variance will not adversely
186 impact the community or enforcement of the IDO. Specifically, prongs two and four are 187 designed to elicit evidence about whether approving a particular variance either sets a bad 188 precedent and or will be destructive to the regulation that is being sought to be eased or 189 excused.

190 The third prong has to do with how the variance might affect or disturb the surrounding 191 physical community, it is circumstantial in nature, but it is a necessary part of the test and 192 cannot be disregarded in the overall analysis of a variance. The fifth prong requires an 193 applicant to demonstrate that the dimension regulation the applicant is seeking to be excused 194 from, is what is minimally needed to adequately alleviate the extraordinary hardship or 195 practical difficulty caused by the special circumstance. Finally, it must be reemphasized, that 196 all five prongs must be proved and met by an applicant. The ZHE's decision regarding the facts 197 in the record under the variance test follows.

199 B. The decision of the ZHE denying the application is well-supported by the 200 record and the IDO

201
202 Because the variance sought is from the IDO's sign regulations, the IDO's stated
203 purposes of the regulations are involved in the analysis. In general, under the IDO, the sign 204 regulations are intended to "promote and protect the public health, welfare, and safety by 205 regulating all types of existing and proposed signs." See IDO, § 5-12(A). Another policy
206 purpose of the sign regulations that is more specifically applicable to the Appellants'

207 application states that the sign regulations are intended to "reduce hazards that may be caused 208 by signs overhanging or projecting..." IDO, § 5-12(A).³

209 In their application to the ZHE, the Appellants disregarded the evidentiary requirements
210 of IDO, § 6-6(O)(3)(a) and instead rationalized their variance request by showing the ZHE
211 how the variance will benefit the Church and the community [R. 051]. Appellants argued that 212 refurbishing their sign from the previous location is cost effective for the Church [R. 055].
213 Appellants also argued that affixing the sign in the manner that violates the IDO will allow for 214 maximum visibility of the sign from the North (Central Ave.) and from the South (Silver Ave.)
215 [R. 055]. The ZHE essentially found that these rationales justifying the variance were 216 insufficient under IDO, § 6-6(O)(3)(a). [R. 007, Fndgs. 17 & 18].

217 In the ZHE's hearing, Appellants also responded to the Planning Staff's
218 recommendation that Appellants install a pole sign at the site instead of seeking the variance.
219 Without any evidence to support the theory, Appellants argued that a pole sign will present
220 security concerns to the Church [R. 053]. Appellants claim that installing a pole sign at the site 221 would give people the ability "to climb that sign and have access to a window, break into the 222 building" and ..."we felt like mounting it the building would be a better aesthetic" [R. 053].

223 In the ZHE's November 5, 2025, decision, the ZHE made several factual findings
224 regarding the Appellants' application and specifically regarding their justifications for the 225 variance. Three key findings relate directly to why the Appellants' application failed to satisfy
226 the variance test under the IDO [R. 007]. These three findings are the crux of the ZHE's

3. Notably, this policy purpose appears to refer to protecting "public right-of-way." However, the policy is equally applicable to reducing any hazard to the public potentially caused by hanging signs.

227 decision denying the variance.

228 First, the ZHE found that despite Appellants' claims, the Appellants failed to present
229 any evidence regarding the variance criteria and specifically failed to show how the property
230 creates a special circumstance. The ZHE expressly found that:

231 there are no special circumstances that are not self-imposed and 232 that do not apply generally to other property in the same zone and 233 vicinity such as size, shape, topography, location, surroundings, 234 or physical characteristics created by natural forces or 235 government action for which no compensation was paid [R. 007,
236 Fndg. 17].

238 The ZHE further concluded that a pole sign is a viable alternative (with the existing 239 sign) that would abrogate the need for a variance, that would comply with the IDO, and that 240 would provide the same visibility of the sign's content from the North and South [R. 007,
241 Fndg. 17]. The ZHE determined that Appellants' rejection of the pole mounted sign alternative 242 was based on the Appellants' choices to reduce its costs, perceptions of "aesthetics," and to 243 locate the sign in a manner that violates the IDO, which are self-imposed conditions that are 244 not valid reasons for issuing a variance under the IDO [R. 007, Fndg. 17].⁴ The ZHE further 245 concluded that because Appellants have reasonable alternatives that do not require a variance, 246 the Appellants could not satisfy the first and the second subpart of the first prong of the 247 variance test--special circumstances, and extraordinary hardship or practical difficulties.⁵

248 After reviewing the record, I find that the ZHE's findings and the decision on the first

4. As discussed below, there are other signage alternatives to a pole sign.

5. Although the ZHE did not explain this in detail, I find that the alternatives to the variance are rational, reasonable, and in fact would substantially diminish or mitigate any hardship or practical difficulties that could have been alleged.

249 prong of the variance test are not arbitrary or capricious and are well supported by the IDO
250 and the facts in the record. Appellants failed to show that the property presents any qualifying 251 special circumstances under IDO, § 6-6(O)(3)(a)1. Said another way, the variance is not based 252 on a special circumstance that is related to the site, but instead it is based wholly on Appellants'
253 desire to refurbish and reuse an existing sign in a manner that violates the IDO.

254 Furthermore, Appellants' argument that a pole mounted sign presents adverse security
255 issues is merely unsupported supposition; Appellants presented no evidence to support the 256 theory. Under the IDO, the burden of proof for applicants is substantial evidence. See IDO, 257 §§ 6-4(E)(3), 6-4(L)(5)(c) and 6-4(M)(1) respectively. Thus, the ZHE did not err in Finding 258 that the Appellants presented insufficient evidence to support their arguments under the first 259 prong for a variance.

260 The ZHE also concluded that the Appellants failed to demonstrate with any applicable
261 evidence how their variance request satisfies the second, third, fourth, and fifth prongs of IDO, 262 § 6-6(O)(3)(a)1. The ZHE concluded that:

263 Applicant's analysis appears to focus solely on direct impacts, 264 neglecting broader public concerns, which form the basis of the 265 inquiry. Additionally, Applicant has provided little to no
266 evidence to support the assertion that the sign will not adversely
267 affect neighboring properties or infrastructure... [R. 007, Fndg.
268 18].

270 The analysis that the ZHE referenced is Appellants' subjective contentions that the 271 projection manner of mounting the sign "greatly improves safety/security and keeps the sign
272 as least obtrusive as possible for neighborhood sight lines. Mounting the sign on a pole would 273 also increase costs by thousands of dollars and create unwanted safety and aesthetic concerns"
274 [R. 030]. This argument is not only too speculative because it is based entirely on Appellants'

275 subjective perceptions; it is a total disregard of what the IDO requires of applicants under 276 prongs two through five of IDO, § 6-6(O)(3)(a).

277 Furthermore, Appellants' argument irrationally assumes that the only alternative is a
278 pole sign. A pole sign is not the only alternative under the IDO. The IDO permissively allows
279 a broad array of signage options, some of which would satisfy Appellants' visibility criteria
280 and alleged security issues. For example, the Appellants are free to place a projection sign that 281 faces North and South on the East exterior wall facade as long as it does not project out more 282 than 30 inches from the wall. It bears reemphasizing that the facts clearly show that the 283 purpose of the variance is essentially to allow for the accommodation of Appellants' existing 284 sign so that Appellants can reduce their signage costs.

285 Accordingly, I respectfully find that approving the variance under these circumstances
286 will not only materially undermine the intent and purpose of IDO, § 5-12(D) (Sign Permitting 287 regulations) but approving the variance under these circumstances would also materially 288 undermine the intent of the variance regulations as well. A variance can only be approved if 289 "all" five prongs of the test are met. See IDO, § 6-6(N)(3)(a). What's more, Appellants' desire
290 and choice to refurbish and mount a specific existing sign in a manner that violates the IDO
291 just to save costs is an improper basis for disregarding the variance test under the IDO. Thus, 292 the ZHE's decision is supported by the facts in the record.

293 Finally, in the appeal of the ZHE's decision, the Appellants now argue that the special 294 circumstances justifying the variance include that the "church occupies a non-standard corner
295 with limited sightline exposure that prevents a wall sign from serving its intended purpose"
296 [R. 010]. However, in the appeal hearing, Appellants did not elaborate on this alleged special

297 circumstance; The meaning of a "non-standard corner" is unknown because the Appellants 298 failed to explain what a "non-standard" corner means and how this condition is related to the 299 church building as a special circumstance.⁶ What corner Appellants contend is "non-standard"
300 is also unknown. Moreover, Appellants failed to explain in any way how the alleged non-301 standard corner prevents signage that fully complies with the IDO as opposed to a sign that 302 they would like to be mounted in a manner that will violate the IDO. Moreover, even if there
303 were sufficient facts in the record to support this new theory (which there are not), Appellants'
304 application is still deficient as discussed above regarding the other multiple criteria for a 305 variance.

306 Finally, although the ZHE did not discuss the fifth prong of IDO, § 6-6(O)(3)(a)(5), it
307 is clear in the record that the requested variance is not what is minimally necessary. The 308 Appellants sign plan demonstrates that the sign will project from the wall a total of 57.5 inches
309 [R. 021]. However, the Appellants are requesting a total of 66 inches of projection, not 57.5
310 inches [R. 016]. In any event, as shown above, because there are reasonable alternatives to 311 signage that do not require a variance, Appellants still cannot satisfy the fifth prong.

312

313 V. PROPOSED FINDINGS

314 1. The decision appealed is a decision issued by the ZHE denying a variance for a 315 projection sign that exceeds what is allowed in the IDO.

316 2. The appellants' appeal is timely filed under § 6-4(U)(3)(a)1.

6. Note that the variance criteria of the first prong requires that a special circumstance must "be applicable to a single lot." This criteria demands that the special circumstance relate specifically to the CHC property, not a street corner.

317 3. Under IDO, § 6-4(U)(2)(a)1, the Appellants have standing to appeal the variance 318 decision because the appellants are the applicants of the variance request.

319 4. A quasi-judicial appeal hearing was held on January 15, 2026, in which the 320 Appellants, the general public, and City Staff were all allowed to present evidence, and cross 321 examine testimony.

322 5. The record shows that the ZHE denied the variance because the Appellants failed
323 to justify the variance under the evidentiary requirements of IDO, § 6-6(O)(3)(a) (the variance 324 criteria).

325 6. The ZHE's decision is supported by substantial evidence in the record.

326 7. In their appeal, the Appellants submitted no new evidence to support any of the 327 requirements that they were required to prove under IDO, § § 6-6(O)(3)(a) (the variance 328 regulation).

329 8. There is insufficient evidence in the record to support granting the variance 330 application.

331 9. The appeal should be denied and the ZHE's decision should be upheld.
